Fire prevention is largely a matter of cleanliness or carelessness in the individual—in you.

Throw no burnt matches into a waste basket. It is criminal carelessness.

Disease and fire have a common cause—dirt and carelessness.

They have a common cure. Every man is morally as much under obligation to keep his place of occupancy clean and free from fire danger as he is to keep his body free from disease. The individual must assume this personal obligation, and by his attitude towards others, create a public sentiment against the man who is threatening the public welfare by his carelessness.

CLEANINGS ON BEACON HILL

Governor Foss Has Shown His Practical Side

A SERIES OF PEN GIVING

The Fish Commission Gets Another
Lift—The Soldiers' Gratuity Bill—
How a $10,000 Highway Was Secured—Adjutant General Is Boomed
For Governor—$5,000,000 For Parkway Improvements

Governor Foss, in spite of his firmness with the legislature, has shown himself to be an extremely practical governor in the handling of his fight for a public service commission.

The governor found at the last moment that he was not likely to get all that he asked for and he was wise enough to see that he had so popularized his plan for a more rigid control of public service corporations that no matter in what small parts a victory might come it was none the less a victory.

His conciliatory attitude of this week contrasted with his sternness of the week before brought him support that it could not have been dreamed he would have.

He is now left with a superb issue if he finally consents to become a candidate for a third term. Of course nobody can predict at this time what may happen in Baltimore. But if the governor should not be given a place on the national ticket there are any doubt, his friends ask, about his allowing his papers to be filed for re-nomination by the Bay State Democrats.

Fish Resolve

Five thousand dollars annually is now appropriated for the purpose of stocking the public waters of the state with food fish and for building hatch-eries and paying for investigations of the fish supply.

This appropriation was strongly recommended by the commission on fisheries and game at the beginning of the session and it subsequently received the backing of almost every sportsman in the state.

Dr. Field, chairman of the commission, estimated that it will take years of careful stocking and protection to bring up the Massachusetts fisheries to what they ought to be.

Schoonmaker's Coup

Chairman Schoonmaker of the railroad committee turned over a neat little matter while the governor and the railroad committee were debating the railroad bills early this week.
The chairman has had pending before the governor a $10,000 appropriation for a highway between Ware and Brookfield. When it came to the question of getting together on railroad bills Schoonmaker suggested that the $10,000 highway would be a good matter to get together on as well.

The governor happened at the moment of the conversation to be in an indulgent frame of mind and at once affixed his signature to the bill.

Foss Cut the Comedy

For knowing how to get close to the governor Johnny Cogswell has progressed further than anybody else in the legislature. For instance when the Boston and Eastern bill was before the legislature.

Cogswell as a member from Essex county was deeply interested in securing some evidence of his zeal. So he went in to see his excellency who said that he was not ready to sign it.

"I'm going to, but give me a chance to read the bill," said the governor.

"Why wait," said Cogswell. But the governor would wait.

Later when friends of the Boston and Eastern were all grouped around the governor's chair, the governor pulled out a quill and signed the measure. He then handed the quill to Charlie Baxter.

"Thank you," said Mr. Cogswell taking it.

Pearson For Governor

Adjutant General Pearson is getting quite a boom for governor during the hot weather. Jim Mack was the man who started the boom and it was found soon afterwards that the adjutant general really had considerable element of strength with the boys at the state house. His boom, of course, rests upon the assumption that Governor Foss will not be a candidate for re-election.

One proof of the adjutant general's popularity is the passage of his bill providing for a five-year tenure of office instead of an annual tenure. The bill went through the legislature in spite of the argument that it was unprecedented to give governors a chief of staff that they did not name. "Bob" Dalton remained the adjutant general about twenty-five years and was named every year by the governor without regard to party. The break in the succession came when Governor Douglas named General Miles as chief of staff and William Stop-ford as adjutant general.

Roger is Proud

Roger Wolcott had an experience with a couple of quills. Last year when he got the pen with which the governor signed the Fore River dredging bill he was so angry at the complications that had attended the passing of the measure that he said he was going to drape the quills in mourning.

This year, however, he has a quill of which he is more genuinely proud. It is that with which the governor signed the redistricting bill which Wolcott with the help of the Democrats put through the legislature.

Wolcott is genuinely proud of his achievement as he has good reason to be. He built it in the face of practically all the Republican leaders in the legislature.

Schofield is Jubilant

After a fight lasting for seven years George Schofield has placed upon the statute books a veterans' gratuity bill which will hold water with the courts.
The bill makes the same provision that was made by the bill of seven years ago. It provides for the payment of $125 to every veteran of the Civil war who did not receive a bounty.

What knocked the first Schofield measure out after it had been passed over the veto of Governor Bates was the opinion of the supreme court that a bounty was for the purpose of inducing men to enlist. It was, therefore, unconstitutional to give a bounty after there had been an enlistment.

The last opinion, however, is that a gratuity is not unconstitutional. In this opinion Chief Justice Rugg does not concur on the ground that no matter what you call the payment a gratuity is nevertheless a bounty.

Schofield says that the bill will be a boon to the old soldier.

Hickey Got a Jolt

"Billy" Hickey of South Boston has a story on the executive chamber that really sounds good. He had a little bill in the legislature for which he had worked and prayed for all during the year. It went through the house and was tied up in the senate when "Billy" went to the governor's office and left word with one of the governor's secretaries that he desired to preserve the quill which should trace the governor's name upon the bill.

Much to his surprise a little later he received word from the executive chamber that the quill was ready for him. In some bewilderment he went over, received the quill with many thanks and then walked away, to find out that his bill had not gone through the senate.

Now he has another quill which is said to have signed the same bill, but he doubts after all whether the thing is genuine. At all events the bills signed, which is the main point.

Brown Wins Parkway

"Charlie" Brown of Medford has been so happy all the week that he has forgotten to make any anti-New Haven speeches. He, too, has been interested in a little measure which provides sometime for the expenditure of $5,000,000 on parkways in the metropolitan district.

Parkway matters have been having a hard time these last few years and this little item which is intended to fix up work not covered by the $16,000,000 already authorized and spent has been asked for these many years.

Civil Service Exempted Itself

There is a good joke being whispered about the state house over the selection of the gentleman who is to succeed General Sherwin as civil service examiner. It will be remembered that when Mr. Reilly was chosen the commission went outside of their classified lists.

Since then nobody connected with the commission has been willing to state why the civil service exempted itself from the civil service, but the secret is leaking out. It seems that if the classified lists had been used it would have been necessary to appoint a veteran, whereas the commission wanted a young man just out of some teaching position.

It is a matter that the civil service doesn't want to talk much about.
There is too much broad humor in it.

Good Selection For Militia

There is an irony almost delicious about a little resolve which Governor Foss has just signed making Lawrence the spot selected for grounds for parade, drill and target practice for the militia. There was absolutely nothing premeditated about the matter. But the selection after the try-mark of poetic justice.

The bill authorizes the armory commissioners to acquire land for the parade grounds. The cost is not to exceed $10,000.

Pay For Schooling

A matter which has been vexing the state for three years may be cleared up by the investigation of the board of education upon the proposed compensation of cities and towns for schooling furnished to the minor wards of the state or of the city of Boston.

Many towns and cities which have been providing education have been bringing up the subject of compensation for years. No adjustment has ever been made, although feeble attempts have been made from time to time to reach an equitable system whereby the state and the city of Boston would pay for what its wards received. The state board of education is to make a report with recommendations for legislation to the general court of 1913.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK

Punchard Won From Exeter

The Punchard baseball nine played its annual game with Exeter high school last Saturday afternoon at Exeter. The local school was vic-

Elks Defeated

The Elks were defeated on the local playstand Saturday afternoon by the Red Sox of Lawrence, by the score of 7 to 4. The Elks had the bases filled in the third, eighth and ninth, with none out, but could not hit the ball safe. The Red Sox team fielding was excellent. The scores:

Cricket

An interesting game of cricket was played on the local grounds last Saturday between Andover and a team of players representing Galashiels, Scotland, but now residents of Lawrence. Andover batted first and easily ran up a score of 81 for seven wickets.
When Captain Stewart declared his innings closed. Doig, Black and Ross were the highest scorers, and of the five bowlers, McKee had the most success. The visitors could do little with the bowling of Black and Bruce and were all out for 40 runs, thus losing by 41. The score:

MASCIOLI IS ELECTROCUTED

Paramour of Mrs. Cusumano Dies For Husband's Murder

LENA CU'UMANO COMMUTED

Mascioli Died at 18 Minutes After Midnight—Crime Was Committed in Hull, Mass.—Final Word Given Him Yesterday Afternoon—Mrs. Cusumano Has Death Sentence Commuted to Life Imprisonment

Boston, June 6.—Enrico Mascioli was electrocuted at Charlestown prison this morning for the murder of Frank Cusumano, killed with an axe at Hull, Sept. 18, 1910. He was pronounced dead at 12:18 o'clock.

Mascioli was led into the death chamber a few minutes past 12. He was placed in the chair, the electrodes applied and the straps fastened into place. Then Warden Bridges raised his cane. At the switch Edward Currier threw over the lever. The condemned man stiffened under the heavy voltage. Then the body relaxed and Medical Examiner Magrath and Dr. J. I. McLaughlin placed their stethoscopes upon the bared breast.

The final word that all hope for him was gone was told Mascioli by Rev. Father Murphy at his cell in the death house at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. This was after Mrs. Lena Cusumano, who had been convicted of the murder of her husband with Mascioli, had been told that her death sentence had been commuted by Governor Foss and the council to life imprisonment because they found there was doubt as to her guilt of murder in the first degree.

Her attorneys will now direct their efforts to secure her pardon.

Mrs. Lena Cusumano, saved from death in the electric chair by the unanimous vote of the executive council, was taken from the death house at Charlestown prison yesterday afternoon, and last evening sent by automobile to Sherborn to commence her life sentence.

The commutation of the woman's sentence culminated one of the most strenuous fights for a human life ever witnessed in this state. She is the first prisoner in the history of Massachusetts to leave the death house at Charlestown prison alive.

FOR YEARS INSANE

Removal of Bone Relieves Pressure and Brings Complete Cure

Lynn, Mass., June 6.—Insane for thirteen years as a result of being shot by a former husband, Mrs. L. Grace Warren was declared absolutely sane at the Danvers asylum yesterday after an operation by Lynn surgeons. It was performed three weeks ago, and a large piece of her skull was sawed out.

Mrs. Warren is 34 years old. She is the wife of Albert Warren of Lynn. Her insanity dates back to the time she was shot by Edgar Stapham, her former husband.

A section of the woman's skull three and a half inches long and one-half inch wide was sawed away and removed by Drs. Gray and Lovell of Lynn, which brought immediate relief to the patient.

The operation revealed that the bullets had caused the skull to press upon the brain, the covering of which adhered to the skull.

WOMEN START RIOT

Men and Women Injured and a 13-Year-Old Boy Fatally Shot

Newark, N. J., June 6.—In a wild strike riot started by women at the Lackawanna railroad, which developed into a terrific battle between the reserves and 500 infuriated laborers, a 13-year-old high school boy was shot through the skull, the woman who led the strikers was hit in two places and five men were badly injured. It was a desperate fight from start to finish.

Among the injured were two non-combatants, a truckman and Albert Faulkes, besides the school boy. The boy is dying in the city hospital. Mrs. Felimio Dauria, who led the women, is also expected to die.

FRIEND KILLS FRIEND

Boy Hunter Shoots as Companion Walks in Front of Rifle

Houlton, Me., June 6.—A bullet from the rifle of another boy with whom he was hunting woodchucks caused the death of Richard Smith, 14, son of Wilbur Smith of this town. William Finnegan had raised his gun to shoot when the Smith boy stepped in front of him and received the bullet in his lung.

The authorities consider the shooting accidental.

Beach Is Indicted

Alken, S. C., June 6.—Frederick O. Beach, the New York millionaire, who has a winter home here, was indicted by the Alken county grand jury on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The charges resulted from a mysterious attack on Mrs. Beach on the night of Feb. 21 last.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE

Throws Blame of High Food Prices on Distilling Consumption

New York, June 6.—The increased price of corn and the consequent increased cost of beef, poultry and eggs, is due to the increased use of corn in the manufacture of distilled and fermented liquors, as well as in the menu of breakfast foods, according to the produce exchange.

Sixty percent of the 3,700,000,000 bushels of corn produced in this country last year is being used by the brewing and distilling establishments, they point out.

"More corn is being used today in the manufacture of distilled and fermented liquors than the entire national corn crop of twenty years ago," said a member of a produce exchange firm. It is no wonder, considering the new uses which have been discovered for corn in the last twenty-five years, the price of cash corn a bushel has risen from 60 cents to 85 cents in that period.

"When we complain about the increased cost of beef, poultry and other corn fed products, we forget there are 35,000,000 people drinking liquors distilled or fermented from corn every day."

TO REOPEN CASE

Relative to Socialist Oleson Being Deprived of Citizenship

Washington, June 6.—Disagreeing with the decision of Federal Judge Hanford at Seattle, depriving Leonard Oleson of his citizenship because he is a Socialist, Attorney General Wickensham has instructed the United States attorney at Seattle to assist Oleson in reopening the case to seek a reversal of the decision.

It is said that an appeal probably will be taken direct to the supreme court if Judge Hanford refuses to reverse his decision.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MURDERER

Arrested by Farmer and Turned Over to the Sheriff

Canaan, N. H., June 6.—News of a homicide at Orange was received here. Henry Stimloski is alleged to have shot John McCough during a quarrel while the men were returning from a trip to Groton.

A farmer named Hubert, who witnessed the affair, captured Stimloski, and then notified the sheriff of the crime.

COMMITTEE CLOSES ARCHBALD SITTINGS

Will Now Be Considered in Executive Session

Washington, June 6.—Investigation by the judiciary committee of the committee of the house into the charges of improper conduct against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court is concluded in so far as taking of testimony is concerned. The committee will discuss the action to be taken in executive session.

Judge Archbald declined an opportunity to defend himself by going on the witness stand. The only defense offered was by his attorney, Colonel Worthing, who read into the record the judge's statement in court when he imposed a fine of $1000 on the officials of the wire trust who were indicted.

Taking every precaution to secure secrecy, the house judiciary committee has begun its consideration of evidence.

A report to the house is not expected until next week. Any conclusion the committee may reach is practically certain to be concurred in by the house.

Several committeemen, after digesting the evidence, declare impeachment proceedings will be brought in any event, putting it "up" to the senate to make a final decision after a full trial.

CONVICTED COMMISSIONER

Is No Wanted on Lawrence, Mass., School Board

Of Its Convicted Commissioner Is Desire of Lawrence Citizens

Lawrence, Mass., June 6.—The Ministers' association of Lawrence took active steps to have recalled from office School Commissioner John J. Breen, the politician who recently was convicted and sentenced to pay a $500 fine for "planting" dynamite to discredit the strikers during last winter's industrial war here.

The local papers all have called on Breen to resign, but the city officials have taken no step to relieve of his post the man who was convicted of a felony. And now the Ministers' association have voted to demand a recall action against Breen.

Roosevelt Gets 15,000

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 6.—Latest returns from South Dakota primary election indicate that the plurality for the ten Roosevelt delegates may reach 15,000. For governor, returns from about half the precincts in the state gave Byrne a lead of about 7000 over Eggen. For congress, Thomas Sterling's friends claim his nomination over Senator Gamble by about 8000.

BELGIUM NOW IS IN REVOLT

Bloody Scenes in Various Parts of the Kingdom

MANY KILLED IN MOB RIOTS

Anti-Romanists Displeased With Clerical Political Victory—Reports From Many Points Tell of Wild Disorder—Soldiers Fire With Deadly Effect—Some Regiments Go Out to the People—Reserves Called Over

Brussels, June 6.—The result of the elections have brought this country to the very brink of a revolution. The victory of the church party has incensed the anti-Romanists and the recent riots are today being followed by revolutionary acts. While reports are conflicting it is believed that at least fifty persons have been killed in the battles between the soldiers and mobs, and that hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property have been destroyed.

Several regiments have deserted to the revolutionary forces and the foreign ambassadors and others close to the situation believe that unless the government takes drastic action at once that the present trouble will develop into a great revolution.

A mob assailed the gendarmes in Verviers with missiles. The gendarmes charged repeatedly and when the rioters refused to disperse opened fire. Thirty of the mob fell killed or wounded. Seven gendarmes were injured. Many arrests were made.

Two thousand miners struck at Mons in protest against the maintenance of the present government. Rioting continued throughout the night at Ghent. A score of persons were wounded in a fight with gendarmes.

The favorite cries of the manifestants are those demanding the administrative separation of the Flemish and the Walloon provinces. Some of the newspapers report a growing sentiment among the working classes in the Walloon districts of the southeast in favor of the annexation of their provinces to France.

At Liege enormous damage was done by the rioters. The streets in the centre of the city are piled high with debris.

The most serious encounter occurred near the Socialist headquarters known as "populaire." Firing revolvers in the air, the protestants advanced slowly through the streets to "populaire," sacking stores and cafes en route. After they had arrived at the headquarters several shots were fired from within the place upon the mounted gendarmes in the street. The commandant, thinking that the soldiers were about to be overwhelmed, gave the order to fire at will. Several volleys were exchanged, during which a number of persons were killed and twenty others wounded.

The new chamber of deputies will contain 101 Clericals, 44 Liberals, 39 Socialists, and 2 Democrats, or a Clerical majority of 16 over the opposition coalition. There are a number of new seats this year, of which the Socialists captured four, though most of them went to Clericals.

Paul Hymans, the Liberal leader, issued an appeal to the Liberals not to resort to violence, but to continue the fight within constitutional limits.

The latest reports from the provinces show that the strike has spread over the entire Liege basin and has tied up most of the collieries and the big metal industry. In the centre of Belgium many industrial proprietors seem to approve of the strike and sympathize with the men.

BOSTON IN STYLE

Has a Little Hotel Waiter's Strike of Its Own

Boston, June 5.—Waiters and bartenders at the Hotel Olympia in Roxbury, struck because the manager refused to employ union help.

The strikers declare that their action has no connection with the hotel strike in New York, as the Boston waiters are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor while the New York strikers are connected with the Industrial Workers of the World.

Representative Parks Resigns

Boston, June 5.—The resignation of Representative Joseph A. Parks of Fall River, representing the Tenth Bristol district in the lower branch of the legislature for nine consecutive years, was read and accepted by the house. Mr. Parks resigns because of his recent appointment by Governor Foss as a member of the industrial accident board.

Arms Furnished Cuba

Washington, June 5.—The state department has authorized the war department to honor the application of the Cuban government for 5000 rifles and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition to be used to arm the volunteers and the guards organized by plantation owners to protect their property against the insurgents.

An Efficient State Department

If all appears to be chaos in the management of public affairs in Massachusetts at the present moment, it is worth while calling attention to some of the bright spots, because the public believes that there are none. Among the departments that are efficient, none shines out more prominently than that presided over by Mr. Gettemy of the Bureau of Statistics. The writer remembers Mr. Gettemy ten years ago as one of the prominent men serving an important newspaper, and the best interests of the Commonwealth with the same tireless efficiency as that which he now devotes to the very important department of state statistics. Such towns as Andover have reason to feel under a great deal of obligation to Mr. Gettemy for his more recent activities to make uniform the public accounting in cities and towns, and to make uniform the methods of handling finances both before and after the accounting begins.

Upon his recommendation, there is to be provided a recess committee who shall give to this subject all the attention possible previous to the coming in of the next session of the legislature. Such a committee is likely to find a great deal of information tending to show a condition of affairs in some cities and towns not exactly in accord with what the tax payers have believed them to be. The disclosures aren't going to be very agreeable and the comparisons are going to be less so, but the ultimate good that will come from it all will mark this work as one of the most important that Mr. Gettemy will ever do for the Commonwealth. Massachusetts is fortunate to have such an official as the one she has at the head of her Bureau of Statistics, and she is doubly fortunate that he is seeing a great work to be done in bringing the cities and towns of the Commonwealth to a realization of the need for better system in all of the local activities in which they are, after all, subsidiaries of the great central government of the state itself.

Some Artful Dodging

Governor Foss usually surprises the people of Massachusetts, and it is pretty difficult to have a week go by when some surprise or other isn't down on his program. It is good to commend him upon the things he does without any selfish motive, and this column has not been slow in giving him praise for several of his recent acts. Unfortunately there are many exceptions to this line of action marking his career as Governor and some of the most striking exceptions are associated with his acts during the past week. It is no wonder that the people call Eugene N. Foss a man pretty well centered upon his own ambitions, but we wonder how far the citizens of the state appreciate how much his own personal fortunes are tied up in some of the legislation that has passed during the recent sessions. Will the bill in connection with the East Boston territory passed this week, add as big a million to the value of the property of the other people in that territory as it will add to the personal fortune of the Governor, who helped it to become law?

We urged His Excellency last week to veto the legislation which was designed to make Salisbury Beach a state reservation at the expense of a few cities and towns in this section of the state. Our position was clearly acknowledged by even those who favored the bill, to be sound. Certainly some action was required by the Governor. If he believed it was right legislation, he should have signed the bill. If he believed it was not proper legislation, he should have vetoed it. He did neither, but rather allowed the proposition to become law without his signature, and thereby adds to his reputation as a man who looks after himself, the further reputation of a very artful dodger.

And the interesting part of it all is that this mode of procedure in present day political activity "gets away with it."

Editorial Cinders

It is doubtful if there are very many people who believe that Andover can beat Exeter at baseball tomorrow, yet doubtful things are often very uncertain, and this saying applies to nothing more aptly than to the modern game of baseball. Playing at their best, Andover will give the New Hampshire boys all they want to do. Playing at their worst, (and no one will deny that it is a pretty high standard that they seem to have set for this superlative season), there should be no difficulty for the Exeter boys in finally winning a baseball game. Whichever way it goes, we have no question about it being an interesting contest and fully up to the standard of Andover-Exeter competitions.

We are glad that a part of the pageant could be repeated, and under such favorable circumstances. The beautiful afternoon, the most attractive surroundings, possible, the children's costumes made new and more beautiful than ever by the new scenery of June's own making, all combined to make of the afternoon program not a repetition, but another affair. A hundred and more dollars for the vacation school marks the practical result, the gift of not only those who took part, but shared in by many who planned and directed.

The visiting nurse fund lags a little. Nearly two hundred dollars are still needed to assure all the good work such as has resulted from previous years of work by this important public service. Is a part of this shortage "up to you"?

The Commencement Season

Next Sunday, June 9, will mark the beginning of the commencement exercises of Phillips and Abbot Academies. On that day baccalaureate sermons will be preached to the graduating classes of both schools. Rev. Raymond Calkins, D. D., of Cambridge, will preach the sermon for the Abbot graduates at the South church at 10.30 a. m. The Phillips sermon will be preached in the Stone chapel at 4.30 p. m., by Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Davies, Bishop of the Western Diocese of Massachusetts.

The other events in the Abbot commencement will occur on Monday and Tuesday. The Draper Reading will be given on Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock. In the afternoon the lawn party will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock. The musical will take place at 8 p. m.

On Tuesday, the tree exercises and ivy planting will occur at 10.30 o'clock, followed by the graduating exercises at 11 o'clock at the South church. The address will be made by Rev. William Wallace Fenn, D. D., of Cambridge. The alumnae meeting and luncheon will take place at 2 o'clock.

The Phillips Draper prize speaking will be held on Wednesday evening in the Stone chapel. Class day will fall on Thursday, with the exercises at 2 p. m. The organ recital will come at 5 o'clock, while the reception by Principal and Mrs. Stearns will be held at 8.30 p. m. in the gymnasium.

The Alpha Delta Tau initiation, followed by the Commencement exercises, will be held in the chapel at 10 a. m. on Friday. The alumni dinner at 1 o'clock, followed by the band concert and ball game, and the Senior promenade in the gymnasium at 8.30 will close the commencement exercises.

The Pynchard baccalaureate sermon will be preached at the South church on Sunday, June 16, by Rev. F. R. Shipman.

Class day exercises will be held on the following Wednesday on the Pynchard lawn at 3.45 o'clock. The various class day parts will be taken as follows: address of welcome, Frank R. Petty; history, Miss Helen E. Holt; ivy address, Miss Jane E. Nugent; statistics, Miss Eva H. Eaton; class will, Miss Mabel E. Marshall; prophecy, Miss Gertrude M. Morgan; address to undergraduates, Miss Elizabeth L. Dick.

The graduation exercises will take place on Thursday evening, June 20, in the Town hall. The valedictory will be given by Miss Margaret M. Barrett. Other speakers will be Clifford W. Dunnells, Miss Louise M.

Greenwood, and Miss Elizabeth M. Henders.

On Friday evening the annual reception by the Alumnae association to the members of the graduating class and their friends will be held in the Town hall.

According to the usual custom the graduating exercises of the ninth grade pupils of the grammar schools will take place in Pynchard hall on the afternoon of June 21. The address will be made by Hon. John N. Cole, while Dr. E. C. Conroy will present the certificates to the graduates. At this time also the award of the prize for excellence in history, offered by the Daughters of the Revolution, will be made.

School Committee Meets

The school committee met Tuesday evening and appointed janitors for 1912-13 as follows:

Bradlee Herbert L. Clark
Indian Ridge Horace Eaton
Richardson Wm. MacEwan
West Centre Chas. A. Hardy
North John Crowley
Osgood Caroline Spickler

James Napier was appointed truant officer. The board granted the request of the Guild for the use of the school grounds for the summer school. It was also voted to install fire extinguishers in all the school buildings in town and a committee consisting of Messrs. Cutler, Bodwell and Hayes was appointed to carry out the work during the summer vacation.

The district committees were empowered to make the changes at the John Dove, Bradlee and Osgood schools.

Visiting Nurse Fund

During the past two weeks $50 has been added to the fund by ten different contributors. The amount still required is about $100.

Abbot Academy Notes

Mrs. Towle entertained the Senior class at supper at the North Andover Country club last Friday evening.

The Saturday evening service was led by Mr. Stackpole.

Attention should be again called to the change this year in the day and hour of the Draper Reading. It is to be at half past ten on Monday morning, and to this reading and to the musical Monday evening at eight o'clock, all friends of the school are cordially invited.

HOME FOR AGED OPENED

Short Exercises on Saturday Mark
Dedication of Home on Pynchard
Avenue

Under very favorable auspices the Andover Home for Aged People was formally opened last Saturday afternoon. A large number of the townspeople, as well as many who came from neighboring cities and towns, were present at the short exercises which took place at three o'clock, and at the reception following immediately after. Advantage was also taken of the opportunity offered to inspect the house, and those who viewed the attractive rooms were the better able to appreciate the extent of the work which has been done by the men and women who have had the interests of the Home so deeply at heart, and who, during the past years have given so much of time, thought and money to ensure its establishment. That their labors have been successful, at least as far as the interior of the house is concerned, was the unanimous verdict of all the visitors.

At the northeast corner of the house on the first floor is the sitting-room or living-room, simply but suitably furnished. A row of book shelves in the corner suggests one amusement for the old people who may enter the home. An attractive dark green paper is on the walls, while the woodwork is finished in a dark brown. Next this room comes the dining-room, done in blue and white, with substantial mission furniture. A pleasant feature of the room is the china closet, with its diamond-paned doors. Adjoining the dining-room is the kitchen and pantry, equipped with every convenience and improvement. On the west side of the house are the directors' room and the housekeeper's room.

On the second floor are five very daintily furnished bed-rooms. Each contains a single bed, a bureau, one or two light stands, and several chairs, the latter comfortably cushioned. Each room has its own color scheme, the wallpaper, furniture and cushions harmonizing. A perfectly appointed bathroom is also on this floor. Throughout the house, the floors are of hardwood, and covered with rugs. Pictures, draperies and the many little touches which characterize a home and make it different from a house are not lacking.

As to the exterior, the changes made are not as great, although a new piazza, granolithic walks, and fresh paint have worked some alterations.

At three o'clock, short exercises were held, which consisted of prayer and scripture reading by Rev. F. A. Wilson, and a history of the Home by Dr. E. M. E. Sanborn. The latter is given below:

Andover has never been remiss when occasion required her service. The present Home for the Aged is an added instance of the generosity of its citizens in giving time, interest, money and articles of worth.

The charter members, seventeen in number in 1890, were ready helpers from the different churches in town. Nine have passed on, and eight remain. It is no more than fitting to speak of the wisdom and help of such as Annie S. Downs, C. F. P. Bancroft, Edwards A. Park, John W. Churchill, Phebe A. Chandler, Mary A. Roberts, Susan E. Abbott, Mary A. Johnson, and James B. Smith. I might say in passing that in asking Professor Park for his name, he turned to one of his family, saying in his genial way, "Miss Sanborn wants me to go into the Old Folks' Home." Also I desire to state that everyone gave the use of his or her name gladly, and without hesitation. "He who gives kindly, gives twice."

Miss Emily Carter deserves great praise for collecting a fund which has enabled us to repair and arrange a house which is now entirely satisfactory.

Mrs. George W. Coburn as our largest benefactor at present, being a parishioner of the Free church, its pastor, the Rev. Frederick A. Wilson, was invited to dedicate the Home. We have other bequests in prospect.

Our several committees have done fine work in directing the repairs, and furnishing. Mr. J. H. Campion and Mr. David Shaw on the repairs, and Mrs. Markham W. Stackpole with Mrs. Charles E. Abbott on the furnishing. Mrs. Joseph W. Smith, Mrs. George W. W. Dove, with others, have aided in the rendering of the Home fit for occupancy.

To name all helpers, here, would take more time than I now have at my disposal, but will probably be given in our Townsman.

Probably I value more than anyone else can, the friends who helped with their single dollars during our infancy. The cars, park, and stores are easy of access, piazzas for sitting out of doors are well and comfortably placed; with neighbors friendly, and a competent matron at the helm, we anticipate much comfort to all concerned. The house is heated by steam and lighted by electricity. Gas supplies instantaneous hot water. The floors are hardwood; the furnishing good. Set tubs add to the comfort of the home. The pantry is a model of convenience, and the old people's comfort and happiness is as well assured as friendly hearts and willing hands can make it.

A reception followed, during which over one hundred and fifty visitors registered in the guest book. Tea was served in the dining-room by the ladies, Mrs. M. W. Stackpole and Miss Ellen G. Ellis pouring. Frederic S. Boutwell was in charge of the punch.

The newly appointed matron, Mrs. Herbert W. Lewis, was present and created a very favorable impression among those whom she met. At present there are no occupants or applicants.

The names of the incorporators, life members, officers, managers and subscribers follow:

Gave Successful Recital

B. Frank Michelsen gave a very successful piano recital before an interested audience at Christ church parish house on Monday evening. He was assisted by several of his pupils and also by Broe Blomquist, baritone. The selections played by Mr. Michelsen were rendered in a very pleasing manner and drew much applause from the audience. The efforts of the children were also much appreciated, as they played with a success and understanding which speaks highly for Mr. Michelsen's work among them.

As for the two selections sung by Mr. Blomquist, they formed one of the specially enjoyable numbers. His appearance is always welcomed, as his voice is of rare sweetness and strength.

The program is given below:

Canzone Amorosa	Netvin
Il Des Derio	Cramer
Little Fairy Waltz	Mr. Michelsen
Priere du Matin	Miss Olive Mitchell
Song without Words	Master Claremont Gray
Mazurka	Zocher
Starlight Waltz	Master Minot Dole

Quarterly C. E. Meeting

The regular quarterly meeting of the Andover Christian Endeavor Union was held on Monday evening, with delegates present from the Free, South, West and Baptist churches of this town, and the Ballardvale and North Andover societies. The banner for the largest percentage of attendance went again to the West church society.

A business session was first held at which several matters were acted upon.

A. J. Shurtle, business manager of the Christian Endeavor World, was then introduced as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Shurtle took as his subject, "The Efficiency Campaign." This movement for widespread efficiency has been going on for some time and Mr. Shurtle confined his address to an explanation of the plans by which the campaign is conducted. He was an interesting speaker, full of his subject, and held his audience for over half an hour.

The meeting was followed by a social, during which refreshments were served.

Pageant Dances Repeated at Mrs. J. W. Smith's on Tuesday Nets $100 for Vacation School

The River God, the Spring Flowers, the May Dancers, the Roses, the Winds, the Goddesses of the Flowers, Fruit and Grains, the Moon and the Stars, the Moths and the Bat, the Grasshopper, the Autumn Leaves and white and heavy Winter, who so delighted the Andover townspeople at the time of their appearance in the town hall two weeks ago, vouchsafed to their admirers another bit of entertainment on Tuesday afternoon when they danced their merry dances again. Charming as was the first performance of the Pageant of the Seasons, the repetition of the principal dances from it given in the grove of Mrs. Joseph W. Smith was in several ways still more enjoyable. The warm sunshine tempered by cool breezes, and intermingled with bits of hazy cloudiness, as well as the beauty of Nature displayed in the green of the grass and trees, and the blue of the water in the little lake nearby, formed a more appropriate setting for the whirling and rushing of the March winds, the bending and swaying of the Roses, and the fluttering of the Autumn Leaves than did the glare of the footlights, the heated hall and the crowded audience.

To the onlooker from the brow of the hill, at the foot of which lies the little pond, with its fringe of trees through which runs a narrow path, the scene was pretty beyond description. An ample stage had been erected at the lowest point in the glade, near the stone wall; the green slopes of the hill were dotted with spectators; all was animation, life and color. Suddenly to the strains of the orchestra stationed near the stage, was to be seen coming in the distance down the lane behind the stone wall, the long procession, headed by the three Goddesses, slightly in advance, followed by the River God in his green and blue, with trident in his hand, the Winds, Flowers and others. Down the lane, across the wall, and around the lake they went, their bright costumes lighted up by the sunbeams glancing through the leaves above, and reflected in the water, below.

After the preliminary march, the dances were begun, and were carried out in accordance with the program below. The group dancing was very effective, especially from a distance, and the struggles and final triumph of the River God to free himself from Winter's bondage, the skipping of the Grasshopper, and the dancing of May and the pretty feather dancer, were much enjoyed.

The audience which had gathered was a large one, and at the conclusion of the dances generously patronized the ice cream, cake, candy and punch booths. From the financial viewpoint, the afternoon was a decided success, over $100 being cleared. The money will be used for the benefit of the Summer Vacation school.

Without question the entertainment was one of the prettiest out-door fetes which has been given in Andover for some time.

Exeter Game Tomorrow

Followers of the fortunes of the Andover and Exeter baseball teams this season look for an unusually close game tomorrow afternoon, when the two preparatory schools meet in their annual contest on Brothers Field.

The Exeter nine have had an exceptional record, having won every game they have played with the exception of the one with Harvard University. The men have undergone hard drill-work during the season, and have played excellent ball both in the field and at the bat. The Exeter supporters are said to be very confident that the New Hampshire school will win the big game.

Andover, on the other hand, is saying little but doing a good deal, and her backers have no doubt but that the good work the team has done during the last few games, added to the determination to win, will come to the front with telling effect on Saturday. The team got a poor start at the outset, but, in spite of several defeats, has developed wonderfully, and is doing good work.

A larger crowd than usual is expected to witness the game, owing to the numerous changes which have taken place on Brothers Field, including improvements costing in the neighborhood of $5000, which make of it one of the finest athletic fields in the country. The baseball diamond has been moved so that the home plate is at the north part, facing south. Both football and baseball fields have been re-graded and drained.

The grandstand has been greatly enlarged so that it will now seat 1325 people. With the addition of other stands there is now a seating capacity of about 3100, 500 more than last year.

For the Good of All

These beautiful June mornings, when the songbirds fill the air with melody, remind us of the usefulness of our feathered friends. We all depend upon the farmer. But many of our immigrants do not know how much the farmer is helped by the songbirds, which are, then, helpers of us all. And the reckless slaughter of them for food, by new-comers from southern Europe, threatens still higher cost of living in the future.

In a New Hampshire town the heads of a hundred robins were found where Polish hunters had dressed their game. Frequently game wardens have arrested men whose pockets were filled with useful songbirds that had been shot or trapped. Strollers have observed that the neighborhood of an Italian construction camp is usually marked by feathers, and is shunned by the songsters.

Now there are strict laws to protect the birds; and Massachusetts requires of all alien hunters a yearly license fee of $15. But the Bulgarians, Greeks, Italians and Turks come from countries where no such laws exist. And they are slow to see why they are enacted in a free country; so they evade the laws easily, since game wardens are few and cannot cover great stretches of wooded territory.

In France the slaughter of useful birds was so extensive, that crops were destroyed by the great increase of harmful insects; and now strict laws are enforced to protect the birds. The same danger now threatens America.

"Bird day" is to be by law in the state of Georgia, a special day, when lessons and all the exercises shall teach about the birds. The homes, the dress, the manners of birds will be studied by the children, and especially bird helpfulness to their human neighbors by caring for insects and the seeds of weeds. Our public schools generally pay much attention to all these matters, and the children of immigrants teach their parents. But many of those who kill the birds are homeless men, and beyond such influence of the schools.

But the labor unions are among our foremost agencies for teaching immigrants, and often their only teachers. Cannot they take up this matter of saving the birds for the good of us all?

The Boston Store of Lawrence

"The Promised Land"

Dear Townsman:

Lo! the poor immigrant! Since the Lawrence strike began, the periodicals have exploited him almost as much as they tell us that the mill owners have done. And we can almost see him, invigiled away from his vineyards and orange groves in Southern Europe, or from his fig and date plantations in Africa or Asia, to grind out his life in a dusty mill and moulder away in a squalid tenement. But it is a refreshing contrast to all that class of printed matter to read the wholesome story of a Russian immigrant, recently put on your book table. The terror of the Pale, the ingenious multiplicity of taxes there, and the horror of the Russian flag, appear as living brandmarks on the quivering soul of a child. And though the little girl who tells the story witnessed no massacres, we can almost hear the cautious, timid breathing of herself and her down-trodden people in that land of the iron heel.

But the family came to America. And for years they knew only poor tenements amid the poverty quarters of Boston. But it was America! And the father's faith in the land of freedom, the little school-girl's love for her teachers and eager seizure of all her opportunities, and the glimpses of the homelife, are good to read. And as you read you perceive why it is that the little Hebrew children have a devotion for our flag surpassing our own; why these ancient people, who have the oracles of God, are making such worthy citizens; and why we may trust them with our best, knowing that they will help us to keep the high ideals of our national life.

Every school teacher ought to read this book, because it fertilizes all those tenderly wise traits that make the genuine teacher. A more discriminatingly appreciative word for teachers would be hard to find. Of her first teacher, whose theory in teaching foreigners was probably her own, she says, "I can only describe the method, which was so simple that I wish holiness could be taught in the same way." Of the "beautiful English language," she says, "It seems to me that in any other language happiness is not so sweet, logic is not so clear. I am not sure that I could believe in my neighbors as I do if I thought about them in un-English words."

It will make better Americans of us all to read carefully her Chapter XI, on "My Country." And it is pathetic to see the little student, by the dim light of the evening lamp, explaining to her working-girl older sister the exalted privilege of being "fellow citizens with George Washington." No wonder that when the school stood up to sing

"I love thy rocks and rills, Thy woods and templed hills," she shouted the words with all her might.

One is tempted to quote many a choice phrase, or at least to refer to its page, but I will not lessen for any of your readers the sense of discovery. But in these mornings full of melody many of us can say with Mary Antin, "My faith in man is the greater because I have watched for the coming of the song sparrow in the spring." She certainly has stirred her readers to make this nation more completely "The Promised Land."

New Books for May

ANTIN. THE PROMISED LAND.
An autobiographic story that will be without question one of the important books of 1912. Chapters from the book which have appeared in "The Atlantic Monthly," have been among the most successful and widely discussed magazine features of recent years. —92 A631

CAMPBELL. THE NEW THEOLOGY.
An outline statement of the teachings that have characterized Mr. Campbell's utterances during his years of ministry at the City Temple, London. He defines the meaning of the term new theology, and then point by point analyzes its content and application to present day living. —230 C15

COX. CLASSIC POINT OF VIEW.
The reader has the sense of dealing with relatives; he also has the sense, which many kindred books do not give him, of the richness of the phenomena of painting about which he is reading. (H. W. Mabie). —704 C83

FORBUSH. THE COMING GENERATION.
Treats of the betterment of children through the home, through education, legislative means, and religious and social nurture and service. —364 F74

GREY. SEVEN SHORT PLAYS.
Brief plays, such as have been made popular by the Irish plays, but of more interest as interpretations of Irish thought and feeling than as drama. —822 G86

GRENELL. ADVENTURE OF LIFE.

These four lectures, which Dr. Grenfell gave last year at Harvard on the W. B. Noble foundation, are the fruit of years devoted to work for helping and saving men, physically, morally, religiously. They show the spring of the activities which have made Dr. Grenfell's work in Labrador so conspicuous. —406 G86

MONTESSORI. MONTESSORI METHOD.

A translation of Dr. Maria Montessori's Italian work on her system of scientific pedagogy as applied to child education. —372 M76

VIVIAN. FIRST PRINCIPLES OF SOIL FERTILITY.

An attempt to present in non-technical language a subject of great scientific and practical interest to the farmer. Only the more important facts concerning the maintenance of fertility have been presented, but the statements so far as they go are in accord with the best scientific thought and practice of the day. —631 V83

WOODBRIDGE. JONATHAN PAPERS.

Many of these delightful out-of-door papers have already appeared in "The Outlook" and in "The Atlantic Monthly." They are full of vividness and enthusiasm, but not the least attractive of their qualities is the charming flavor of whimsicality and imagination that colors them. —818 W85

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Baseball, Football, Cricket and Golf

Every country has what they call a national game, and the kind of game is more or less in keeping with the character of the people of the country. America has the baseball craze, and the sound and fury of the game pleases the erratic, impulsive Yankee. Cricket is the English national game, and although to those who know the game it is a fascinating and interesting ball game, it does not appeal to the crowd like baseball or football.

The worst feature of baseball, as I see it, is the professional element so strongly brought into play. Every one to his taste. I would not go fifty yards to see a professional, but I would go a mile to see a scrub game in a vacant lot played by boys about twelve years of age, especially if a few of them were smart negro lads with old overalls for uniforms.

A school game such as our Exeter-Andover annual match is worth spending a couple of hours to see. The use of the game is to give the young men fresh air and athletic training. Of course the betting or gambling element cannot, as long as human nature is as it is, be put where it should be, viz., to perdition. The professional game tends to encourage gambling and is a crying evil, and as I see it, the money spent on it would be far better at the bottom of the sea. But it may be asked, Is there no professional cricket? There are professional cricketers, but no professional teams. This year Australia and Africa both send cricket teams to Britain, but they are not all professionals. In each team there will be two or three men called players paid a regular salary to do most of the bowling and keep the grounds in order.

There is an annual game played in London, called the gentlemen and players match. Here we would use big words and call it the amateurs and professionals match. Few people in England would go to see professionals playing against professionals. It is wonderful the hold that golf has taken here during the past twenty years. Golf is a game useful for a person who requires exercise and is too lazy to walk, and the wholesome rivalry between a couple of sixty-five year old boys on the links is just as keen as that of ten year old boys playing marbles. So many good stories are told about golf and golfers that it is difficult to choose the best one. So far as I have read, I think that the best one is about a clergyman who kept saying after he fumbled a ball, "Well, well." As he got into the real game he said "damn" to himself quietly, and then in a day or two he spoke out loudly, "Damn it." After he had mastered the golfer's language and was returning to the first hole, he said to his caddy that he must either give up preaching or give up golf. The caddy replied, "Well, sir, give up preaching. My father, who attends your church, says that you are a very poor preacher; but since you began to swear like the rest of them you are gettin' to be a fair hand at golf!"

I may be old-fashioned, but I don't like the rush game of football; neither do I care to see what is called the Rugby game. This tackling and knocking each other down and running with the ball is not football—what is called the association or soccer game is football, and requires nerve, agility and tact to dribble and play with the ball and then give it the right kick. Last year a football team from England came over here and played a series of twenty games, winning them all and only one man on their team was slightly injured.

In the year of grace 1703 football was allowed to be played on Sundays in Scotland at certain hours of the day. Then as now they seemed keener on football than attending church, and frequently played their game at times of the day which the law said were church hours. In the parish church of the parish in which I was born a young clergyman who was a great athlete at college was conducting the usual services. As the village green where football was played was near the church, the roaring and noise of the football game drowned out the psalms of the church. This young fellow could stand it no longer and said as he took off the clerical gown and then his coat, and laid them over the pulpit, "I, John Ross, will have a game at football, and nobody will touch these clerical robes till I finish this football game." This Red John Ross soon finished the game; he kicked and knocked down every player he could get near and left them wounded and bleeding on the field, and then walked quietly into the church, put on the clerical robes and finished the service in good order and peace.

IAN McDOUGALL

P. S.—The Andover cricket team this season has actually won all the three games played, as, although defeated by two runs by the Chelmsford team, while having only nine players, the game really was Andover's; and the game with the champion Lawrence team, although a draw, was a real win for Andover. The bowling and fielding of Andover will win out and give the boys a standing in cricket.

Athol's 150th Anniversary

The town of Athol will celebrate its 150th anniversary on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 16, 17, and 18.

Sunday forenoon the churches will hold special services. Sunday afternoon at 2.30 there will be a mass meeting on the common at Athol Centre with a chorus of 400 voices and an address by the Rt. Rev. Daniel F. Feehan, bishop of Fall River, a native of Athol. At 5 o'clock the Masonic lodges of the town will unite in dedicating a memorial tablet on the site where the first Masonic lodge was instituted in the town in 1803. It is expected that the entire 2nd Regiment, M. V. M., will come into town late Sunday afternoon and go into camp on the anniversary grounds at the foot of Main street. In the evening there will be band concerts in both of the villages.

Monday at 10 o'clock there will be a parade which will be participated in by the militia, societies, manufacturers and merchants. There will be sports in the afternoon on the anniversary grounds and fireworks and band concerts in the evening.

Tuesday forenoon there will be a ball game and an automobile sight-seeing tour. In the afternoon there will be an address by the Hon. J. H. Atwood of Kansas City and others, and in the evening an anniversary ball at Brookside Park.

W. C. Spratt of Boston will be in town throughout the anniversary to assist in feeding the people, and every one way interested in the town of Athol will be made most welcome.

There will be a historical, educational, and relics exhibit open during the entire celebration.

No admission will be charged to any of the events except the ball.

There will be special rates on the Boston and Maine railroad, and special trains and return on the Athol branch of the New York Central.

Grange Field Meetings

Got His Extra Outlet.
The Brazilian nabob Baron Fereau was as miserly in trifles as he was extravagant in other directions. It was one of his peculiarities never to fee servants, and the waiters of the various hotels at which he sojourned were for that reason not partial to him. One morning while staying at the magnificent Maux hotel, in Rio de Janeiro, he came down to breakfast and ordered a cutlet. After he had eaten it he ordered a second. "Baron," said the head waiter maliciously, "it's a custom with us never to serve the same course twice at a meal." "Is that so?" said Fereau, and, rising from his seat, he left the room. In ten minutes he came back into the dining room. "Waiter," said he, "I have just bought this hotel and am master here now. As you will not be able to get accustomed to my plan of serving guests according to their wishes, you are dismissed at once." Thereupon he took up his napkin again and called to another waiter. "Now bring me another cutlet!"—Argonaut.

Society of Poisoners.
Arsenic has perhaps been more frequently used than any other poison for criminal purposes. It has been proved identical with the "wonderful elixir" of the seventeenth century, when secret poisoning became so frequent in Italy. Then young widows were abundant in Rome, and most of the unhappy marriages were speedily dissolved by the death of the husband. A secret society of young matrons was discovered, which met at the house of La Spina, a reputed witch, who supplied them with a slow, tasteless, colorless poison, carefully calculated to kill a husband in just the time that suited the purchaser. La Spina and thirteen of her companions were hanged, a large number of the culprits were whipped half naked through the streets of Rome, while others of the highest rank escaped with heavy fines and banishment.

Coal and the Arts.
An intimate connection between coal and the arts is seen in the career of Thomas Britton, the celebrated "musical small coal man." Over his coal shop in Jerusalem passage, Clerkenwell, he established in 1673 a musical club, where every Thursday for nearly forty years was held a concert, at which Handel and all the greatest musicians of the day performed. To a love of music Britton joined a knowledge of bibliography, which brought him into contact with Harley, earl of Oxford, and other collectors. But he continued until his death in 1714 to sell coal in the streets of London and would frequently join his noble patrons on a book hunting expedition attired in his blue smock and with the coal sack he had been carrying all day over his arm.—London Chronicle.

Balzac's Passwords.
It was not easy to make one's way into Balzac's house at Chailloit, Rue des Batilles, for it was guarded like the garden of the Hesperides. Two or three passwords were necessary, which were changed frequently for fear they should become known. I remember a few. To the porter we said, "The plum season has come," on which he allowed us to cross the threshold. To the servant who rushed to the staircase when the bell rang it was necessary to murmur, "I bring some brussels lace," and if you assured him that "Mme. Bertrand was quite well" you were admitted forthwith. This nonsense amused Balzac immensely, and it was perhaps necessary to keep out bores and other visitors still more disagreeable.—Miss Wormley's "Memoir of Balzac."

Oddly Expressed.
In one of his letters William Brookfield tells how as school inspector he had to give an examination on physical science. "What was I to do? I knew nothing about hydrogen or oxygen or any other 'gen.' So I set them a paper which I called 'applied science.' One of my questions was, 'What would you do to cure a cold in the head?' A young lady answered, 'I should put my feet into hot water till you were in a profuse perspiration.'"

The Needle's Eye.
Kathryn, aged five, was vainly trying to thread a needle. "Mamma," she asked, "don't they call a hole in a needle an eye?"
"Yes, dear," answered her mother.
"Well," continued the little miss, "I'll bet this old needle is cross eyed."—Chicago News.

Again Our Queer Language.
"Queer language, isn't it?"
"Why so?"
"Because of sickness I had to send my shorthand writer home yesterday."
"Well?"
"That left me shorthanded."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Make It Help.
Let every dissatisfaction with the present be made not a discouragement, but an inspiration, by the continual consciousness of the great law of eternal growth.—Phillips Brooks.

The Life Line.
Amateur Palmist—The life line indicates how long you will live. Skeptical Friend—Yes? Isn't it a wonder the life insurance companies pay no attention to it?

An Excuse.
Patience—What reason had she for marrying him? Patrice—Why, he had money. Patience—That is not a reason; that's an excuse.

CASTLE SQUARE

"The Climax," a play in three acts, rather unusual in plot and setting, is the attraction at Castle Square this week.

MAJESTIC

Mr. Morison has decided to present a monster revival of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" next week.

The charming story of Mrs. Wiggs is generally familiar to theatre-goers as well as to the thousands who have read the book on which the play is founded. The play is a big favorite with the Morison Stock Company, for the members have often taken keen pleasure in portraying the quaint rural characters. As in former presentations of the play by Mr. Morison's company, the title role will be played by Rose Morison, who as a character actress has no equal in stock. Tall, lanky and funny Mrs. Hazy will be played by Edna Oliver, who played the same role for Mr. Morison before. Howell Hansel will be seen in the rural character of Stebbins, while Anna Cleveland will essay the role of the poorhouse girl. The large cast will include all the other Morison favorites.

It is Mr. Morison's intention to offer the play for one week only, despite assurances from a great many of his patrons that it would run to crowded houses for at least two weeks. Nothing will be left undone in the scenic equipment for the piece.

The Actor's Clothes.

Our principal actor of whims was Mr. Mansfield, as has been made known variously. One whim of his is related by Fritz Scholtz, the costumer.

When it came to the staging of "The First Violin" Mansfield was keen to get garments with "character" in them and found that of all places Scholtz's was the one that could supply him with redingotes. He was delighted with them, introduced them and at the end of the Chicago engagement absolutely declined to return them.

The matter of getting stage clothes with character is interesting in itself. Secondhand shops supply the most, although on occasions an actor has been known to approach a laborer on the street and make him an offer for his weather beaten coat.—Chicago Post.

Gladstone's Speech for Irving.

Gladstone was a great admirer of Sir Henry Irving, and this admiration was shown one day in the house of commons. Irving was under the gallery in the house when suddenly, without apparent reason, Gladstone leaped to his feet and delivered an impassioned speech, set off with all the expression and dramatic gesture for which he was so famous. The house seemed surprised. Members looked at one another and murmured, "What is the old man now up to?" They thought it was some deep political game. But a week or two later a friend of Irving's, encountering Mr. Gladstone, mentioned the actor's visit to the house, and Gladstone eagerly inquired: "What did he think of my speech? I made it for him."

Name For the Species.

A Texas statesman, who knows as much about poker as he does about politics and as much about politics as he does about poker, sat in a little game in New York one evening and became extremely annoyed, not to say peeved, by the lamentations of a man who was losing. Finally one of the other players, also irritated by the constant wall, told the loser:

"You are one of the greatest monologists I ever listened to outside of a theater."

"He's not a monologist," said the Texan tartly. "He's a moan-ologist."—Popular Magazine.

The Snail.

The slowest creatures in creation are snails and certain small beetles. Some of them habitually move only a foot or two in an hour, but this slowness is partly due to the fact that they remain motionless at intervals. By measuring the distances covered by snails when they were kept going constantly it has been found that the maximum speed of a good healthy snail is five and a half feet an hour.

Legend of the Death of Kenith.

The death of Kenith, the half mythical king of Scotland, was one of the most remarkable in all history—that is, if it can consistently be called a historical fact. According to the story, Kenith had killed a son and brother of the warlike Fennella. She for revenge caused Wilfrus, the most ingenious artist of the time, to fashion an automatic death dealing machine, a wonderful statue filled with hidden springs, levers, etc. When finished and set up this "brazen image" was an admirable work of art. In its right hand it held a basin and in the left an apple of pure gold, both set with diamonds and other precious stones. To touch this apple was to dare death, it being so arranged that one guilty of such vandalism would be immediately liddled by poisoned arrows shot from loopholes in the body of the statue. Kenith was invited to come and inspect the wonder, and, kinglike and just as Fennella had hoped, he tried to pluck the precious imitation fruit. The moment his hand touched the incrustated jewel he was filled with poisoned arrows, dying where he fell.

When Folks Feared Gas.

In the early days of the last century, when illuminating gas was first used in London, timorous people talked of the dangers of suffocation and of explosions to which the gas, which was still imperfectly purified, exposed the citizens. Scientists confirmed these assertions, and the first gasometers erected in London by Samuel Clegg so terrified the people that no workman would venture to light the gas jets which had been placed on Westminster bridge. But Clegg soon overcame this difficulty by lighting a torch and applying it to the burner with his own hands. On another occasion before a committee of the Royal society of London he bored a hole in the gas holder and put a lighted candle to it, to the great alarm of the spectators, but without causing the slightest accident. Gradually the eyes even of the most prejudiced were opened to the truth.

What She Overlooked.

"That's queer," said the landlord. "What's the matter?"
"I've just collected the rent for that house."

"What's queer about it? Didn't the lady ask you to paper the parlor?"

"Oh, yes, and the dining room and the bedrooms, and she also asked me to paint the front and back porches and build another outdoor sleeping apartment on the rear."

"And she threatened to move, of course, if you refused?"

"Yes."

"Well, I don't see anything queer about that."

"You don't? Well, she didn't impress upon my mind what good tenants they have always been and advise me that I couldn't afford to lose them. I can't see how she overlooked that speech."—Detroit Free Press.

Remarkable Luck.

In Gold Hill, Nev., in 1877, one of the mining bosses—Tole by name—had trouble with some of the laborers in his mine. One night three of them attacked him in a barroom. Two of them planned him down, while a third stood over him with a revolver. The muzzle almost touched his stomach. Once, twice, thrice, a fourth and a fifth time the weapon snapped. Tole closed his eyes. Each moment he expected to be his last. The disgusted ruffian threw his disappointing weapon on the floor with an oath and, joined by his aids, left the place. Tole wiped the cold sweat from his brow, mechanically picked up the discarded weapon, went to the door and fired off every charge, remarking that it was just his luck.

Odd Marriage Ceremony.

Polynesia is probably the only place in the world where the marriage feast takes place without the presence of the bridegroom. For some unexplained reason the young man is "sent into the bush" when negotiations are opened with the family of his bride, and he remains there during the subsequent festivities. It is only when the guests have departed and the girl is left alone with his parents that messengers are dispatched for him.

Needed Them All.

A well known authoress was once talking with a dilapidated bachelor, who retained little but his conceit.

"It is time now," he said pompously. "for me to settle down as a married man, but I want so much. I want youth, health, wealth, of course; beauty, grace!"

"Yes," said his fair listener sympathetically, "you poor man, you do want them all."

Children's Day at South Church

The annual Children's Day exercises were held at the South church last Sunday morning before a large congregation. A program of more than ordinary merit was carried out, excellent work being done by the children who took part. An especially pleasing feature was the exercise called "The Building of the Ship," in which the children built and rigged a ship, illuminating the various steps by means of recitations.

Mr. Shipman gave an interesting talk to the children, and at the conclusion of the service, plants were presented to members of all the classes.

The program was in part as follows:

Processional Hymn
Call to Worship
Invocation, followed by The Lord's Prayer
The Doxology
The Psalter
Gloria Patri
Baptismal Hymn and Ministration of Baptism
Choir Hymn, (J. E. West), "The woods and every sweet-smelling tree"

Marriages

In Andover, Saturday evening, June 1, at 6 Brechin Terrace, James Peters Conner and Elizabeth M. C. McKenzie, by Rev. F. A. Wilson.

In Andover, Wednesday evening, June 5, by Rev. F. A. Wilson, Albert M. Kent of Boston and Agnes L. Wilkie of Andover.

OBITUARIES

HARRIET E. HARNDEN

Mrs. Harriet Elizabeth Harnden, widow of the late Stillman H. Harnden, a life long resident of Andover, passed away at her home on Main street early Tuesday morning, June 4. She reached her eightieth birthday last April.

Born in Andover, and having spent her entire life here, Mrs. Harnden was well known here and strongly identified with the life of the town. She was a devoted attendant at the South church until strength failed her. For many years she made her home on Essex street, and for some time past she has lived quietly on Main street, opposite the home of her daughter, Mrs. John A. Leitch, whose loving care has helped to ease the last months of illness and suffering.

Besides her daughter, she leaves a son, John S. Harnden of this town, a nephew, Chester H. Harnden, two brothers, Samuel H. Tucker of New York, and Frank Tucker of Taunton, and two sisters, Mrs. James A. Middleton, and Mrs. G. H. Scott, both of Hyde Park.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Dr. Leitch, on Main street. They were conducted by Rev. F. R. Shipman. Burial was in the South cemetery.

DANIEL DONOVAN

Daniel Donovan, an old resident of Andover, died Tuesday, June 4, at his home, 35 Pearson street. The deceased was born in Ireland, but had resided in Andover for 57 years. He was 73 years of age.

He is survived by four sons, Charles, John, James of San Diego, Cal., and Rev. William F. Donovan of St. Augustine's church, Andover; two daughters, Margaret A. Donovan and Sister Mary Monica of the Notre Dame order, Chicopee.

The funeral was held this morning at 9.30 o'clock at St. Augustine's church. Interment was in St. Augustine's cemetery.

Marriages

KENT—WILKIE

The first of the June weddings in Andover took place on Wednesday evening at the home of Alexander Brown, 12 Florence street, when Miss Agnes Lorimer Wilkie of this town was united in marriage to Albert Morris Kent of Cambridge.

The ceremony, which took place at seven o'clock, was performed by Rev. F. A. Wilson, the Episcopal service being used. As the bridal party took their places, the wedding march was played by Miss May O'Connell. The bride wore a handsome gown of embroidered white lace over silk, and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil was fastened with clusters of lilies. She was attended by her sister, Miss Susie Wilkie, who wore pink crepe de chine, and carried pink sweet peas. The best man was Clifford Haskell of Newton, while the flower boy was James Motz of Cambridge.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at which guests were present from Boston, Cambridge, Newton, Wollaston, Lawrence and Andover. The house was charmingly decorated with daisies and palms.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent left late in the evening for a wedding trip to Canada, after which they will reside in Cambridge where the groom is employed by the American Express Company.

Many beautiful and valuable wedding gifts were received by the young couple and they will be followed to their new home by the best wishes of their many friends.

Field Trip to Lynn Woods

The Natural History society made a field-day trip to Lynn Woods on Saturday, June 1, there being sixteen in the party. Mrs. Frank M. Foster acting as guide. A call was made upon Mrs. Helen Morton, an aunt of Mrs. Foster, who most hospitably placed her house at the disposal of the company. A member of Mrs. Morton's family then joined the party, guiding through pleasant footpaths along which were found a variety of wild flowers, to Dungeon Rock. It is supposed that there is a cave in the heart of this mass of rock, the entrance to which was closed by the earthquake of 1658. And tradition says that previous to that date the cave was used by pirates as a hiding-place for treasure. In 1852 a man named Hiram Marble, of Lynn, bought five acres of land, including this rock, and moved his family up there into the woods. He spent the rest of his life trying with powder and drill to reach the cave in the rock. His son worked twelve years after the death of his father, but neither reached the goal. The Natural History party had expected to enter the narrow passage which had been hewn in the solid rock, but owing to the wetness of the season, the park commissioner said it was unsafe to do so.

From the top of Dungeon Rock, Lynn harbor can be seen. After climbing over, around and under the various rocks, the party gathered to hear the reading of a paper prepared by Miss C. H. Abbott, telling the legends of the place.

The path was then taken to Lantern Rock, overlooking Breed's pond and the harbor, where the basket lunches were enjoyed. The view was so beautiful from this great elevation that it was with regret that the footsteps were turned in the direction of the prosaic but useful electric car.

A Tribute

A familiar figure will be seen no longer in the streets of Andover, and the town is the poorer because of the going this week of another who honored his business profession and deserved and received the respect of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Daniel Donovan painted for your father and mother and mine, and would have continued to paint for us, had not the infirmities which come with age obliged him a few years ago to retire from active service.

The little man with his paint pails was indispensable in the spring and fall refurbishing which took place in all the houses of the old Andover families, and their descendants will always think of him with gratitude for what he was as a workman and as a man.

Learning his trade at a time when the painter must prepare his own materials, he brought to his work a thorough understanding which stood him in good stead in the long years of business life in Andover.

What shall we say of his courtesy, of his desire that his customers should be satisfied, of the promptness which found him at work morning and afternoon at the appointed hour, and so quietly had he entered that often one was not aware of his presence, of his dependableness, of his desire to be at peace with those about him.

Mr. Donovan was a type of the house-painter of "The Old Andover Days," the days of which we think longingly, the days made so by the men and women who lived in them and of whom so few are left.

Let us who are proud of our beloved town, think of their virtues, emulate them, thus recognizing those who have played well their part and are now entering into rest.

Squantum Aviation Meet

Plans for the third annual Boston aviation meet which is to be held from June 29 to July 7 at the Harvard Field, Squantum, under the direction of William A. P. Willard, are being rapidly pushed forward. Already ten aviators have been signed to fly, and at least fifteen of the world's greatest aviators will enter the contest.

The field at Squantum is now being put into shape for the meet. For the past week several surveys have been laying out the grounds which this year will be entirely different from that of the past two seasons. The getaway will be at right angles with the one used at the previous meets. This getaway will be nearly half a mile long and 150 feet wide. A huge grandstand which will seat at least 10,000 people is to be started at once a short distance from the administration building. The grandstand will be built so that every seat will be desirable to spectators. The automobile space will be located opposite the hangars and grandstand. Room for over 5000 cars has been provided for. These cars will line up on the getaway and the park room for the machines will be nearly perfect. A separate road to the field for automobiles will be provided.

One of the chief attractions will be Lincoln Beachey, who was easily the star of last year's meet. Aviator Beachey has, since his last appearance in Boston, become one of the most daring and thrilling aviators in this country. Last August he established an altitude record at Chicago of 11,474 feet. This record was recently broken again by a foreign aviator. The other aviators who have sent their contracts to Manager Willard are Hugh A. Robinson, William Hoff, Charles F. Walsh, Charles Whitmer, Beckwith Havens, George W. Beatty, and Frank Coffyn. Several foreigners have signified their intention of coming to Boston to participate in the events. Besides the men, plans are being formulated to have three women aviators from the Curtis School fly at the meet. Miss Blanche Scott, Miss Matilda Moisant and Miss Harriet Quinby are the ones whom Manager Willard hopes to secure.

Dinner Engagements.
A witty Frenchman said, "Only death is an excuse for not keeping a dinner engagement, and even then a polite man would send the undertaker to apologize for him."

Slowly Mending.
She—And how is your bachelor friend? He—When I saw him last he was mending very slowly. She—Indeed! I didn't know he'd been ill. He—He hasn't been. He was sewing fresh buttons on his underwear!

Too Far.
The fresh young man seated himself beside a handsome girl on the train. "Going far?" he inquired. "You are, sir; much too far," was the shilling retort.—Boston Transcript.

Trouble and Worry.
Wait till trouble comes before worrying about it. If you worry before it comes it may never come at all and you will have lost health and spirits over a phantom.

Carlyle Corrected.
At a Royal academy dinner in London on one occasion several artists were expressing their enthusiasm about Titian. Carlyle and Thackeray were among the guests.

"His glorious coloring is a fact about Titian," said one man, striking the table to give emphasis to the remark.

"And his glorious drawing is another fact about Titian!" cried another artist. And so they went on until Carlyle, who had been listening in silence to their rhapsodies, interrupted them by saying, with a slow deliberation which had its own impressive emphasis:

"And here I sit, a man made in the image of God, who knows nothing about Titian and cares nothing about Titian, and that's another fact about Titian."

Thackeray was sipping claret at the moment. He paused and bowed courteously to Carlyle. "Pardon me," he said; "that appears to me to be not a fact about Titian, but a fact, and a lamentable one, about Carlyle."

Washington Monument.

The cornerstone of the Washington monument was laid on its fine site, which overlooks Washington, Georgetown, Arlington and Mount Vernon, by President Folk July 4, 1848. Its marble shaft rises in all the dignity of unadorned simplicity to the height of 555 feet. The base of the shaft is fifty-five feet square, and it gradually tapers until at the 500 foot point it has diminished to less than thirty-five feet. This monument is said to contain 18,000 blocks of marble, each two feet thick. They were lifted on an elevator run by steam, suspended in an inner framework of iron, which was built up at intervals, thirty or forty feet at a time, in advance of the surrounding masonry. The aluminum capstone, nine inches high, was set in position Dec. 6, 1884, thirty-six years and a half after the cornerstone was laid.
